GOD is where ?

If we were to look at all the evidence and i'm mainly talking the Electric background radiation, this being the main data coming from the first instances of the Universe itself expanding, now, we are not in an advantageous position to look at the centre but the data is accurate this means that whatever, or whoever started this universe but in essence the main thing to look at would be the initial white hole which has begun to expand and up until now has barely cooled down. Some say that the expansion of the universe is all there is and we are unable to resist it. I disagree as this universe code would not be able to account for all the actions of all 8 billion of us.

We are all born equal, we all have learning potential, we all have the tools we need, we must ascend from the garden to allow for us to be able to move forward, all we can do so far is move right and left, we must reach for the stars literally before we can say we have not sinned, God made this garden for us, that's why this is all so easy to mine for resources and move forward, but we have stagnated in this modern age, instead of liberating the words for understanding we have bogged down the machinery to make it so others may have to break their back before they can understand. How have we learnt so much but enlightened so few people ?

Even thinking about it, we are 14 billion years late to the whole being game, as we have checked the age of the universe and we have even been looking around this galaxy and also this general local cluster. So if there was a god he was the preset initial phase of the universe which eventually led to us and every other planet, star, nebular etc.

Without having to look on other planets we have filled out the periodic table, only a handful of the elements are in this earth, so that the scientists are able to theorise and place these elements into categorical order and then been able to collect samples without needing to reach out to the moon or other planets due to lack of local resources.

Now we are here and we have free will, something that Set stole for us, just like how prometheus stole fire for us, what next do we need to take next from the heavens, do you think that Warp drives will be a divine intervention or will one of us the humans be able to build one ?

Sin means to miss the mark, we are too busy playing in the bathtub with our aircraft carriers to notice the house is burning inside out, we have limited but plenty of resources on this planet. Would it be to miss if we have not been able to leave the garden of eden, and instead made life so complex you need 3 PHDs to just read an article of science literature, to quote a great man, " if you can't explain it simply you don't understand" - Albert Einstein

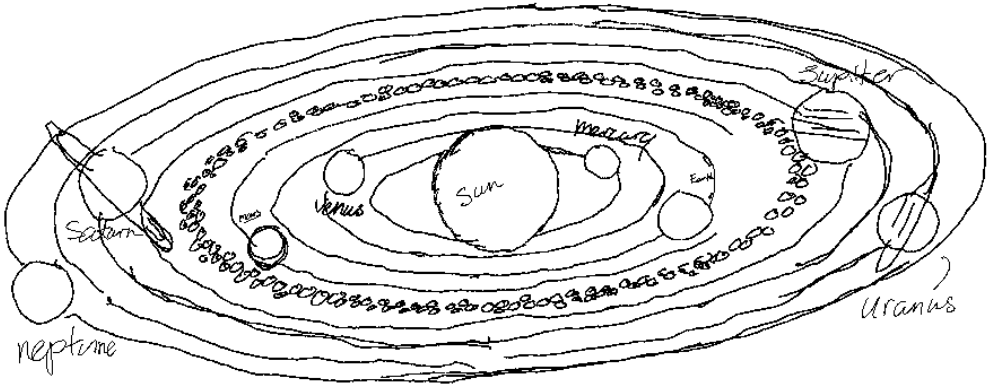
From our beginning the loving God has given us a home with a nice star and plenty of planets, we have 7 others in the flat orbital plane of the sun, alongside us. With two exoplanets which we may use to build a local relative galactic position system.



Now we are not static, we move through the galaxy we are in the orion arm of the milky way and we move through this space, along with everything else, as we all fall into the supermassive Singulariy in the centre of the galaxy, this spiralling of our existence, can be show thus our contestants of physics are only constant relative to where we are, if we go 10 lightyears either closer or further from the origin point of all human civilisation these constants shall show us they are not that, constant. The image of what we are and who we shall become are all relative to what we have done so far, we look at nature and copy examples, the world is not that much, but we claim it as the epitome of all we are. We should model ourselves off the best there has been, not some pale reflection of what we could be, for instance bees, we are not all drones, we are people, a populus/a we are that which we create, this has been made for us, not like we could be all that and more, which we can be.

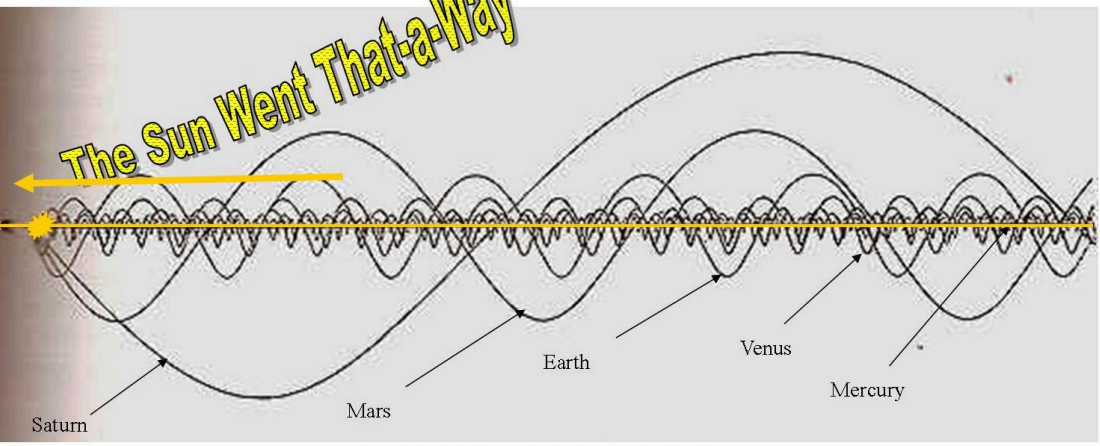
Be good to those who are good, not to us but to those around them, the world is that which has been made, posion, we all drink it, we all eat it, the rich elite have filled the well with posion for they have their own source, most of the rich we know are not in their group, it’s the true 1% not the others.



The Planetary Vortex

Movements of the inner planets viewed over a period of one Saturn cycle of 29.36 years.

Along with the simplest things in this universe are also the most powerful items, I mean stars. These balancing acts of generic basic laws are that in which all the elements of the universe may be built from the star is the forges of the universe. Now don't get it wrong space is mostly empty but everything is in space,so we have these clouds of hydrogen gas which accumulate into the eventuality of a star, with gravity and eventually having enough stuff to start a fission reaction, with the simple pressure building, burning all the hydrogen into the helium then more and more until iron which is the balancing point as it needs more energy to make heavier elements such as carbon, here the star needs a good balance of mass to keep going for some time.

With new nuclear bombs we have just begun to harvest the unyeilding power of the stars, it is a shame that the global consensus on nuclear power is that of something to be scared of and that it should be basically not used and that the coal gas and renewables are the only option. If we had self sustaining self running power plants many would go a whole life without black outs or any sort of power fluctuation other than upscaling events which is where more or larger reactors are placed in the system.

In the land of the forms, there are metaphysical structures, these are made from belief and want, there is a perfect circle, or a chair, but also all the gods of every religion are here too, God was made as a Chandelier, the form of him with his every description, since he was made just before the Dark Ages, this form has had rocks, bottles and all manner of thing throw at him, and as Nitchev has stated rightly so, he is dead, and we (all of us) have killed him, in the old days, with a pantheon, one god can be damaged but never the whole set, the romans had it right, not just the aquaducts, sanitation, education, and system of goverment, and miltary hierarchy the gods too, with a pantheon all the gods can heal, fortify, affect us and otherwise balance out the works of these gods were praise worthy and other no so much, upper/higher, and under/lower gods could be used to navigate in a world of changing complexity, but with one god, angles and devils, the angles are not powerful enough to fix god, the angles and devils are at work, inside there own house, how long do you expect that to function ? we are in a time of godlessness, the pantheon is best, as these metaphysicals forms we call " gods " are free to please and punish, each one having its own name and all of them not knowing the future, once you have a all powerful, all knowing, all controlling god who can be damaged as any formed thing can be, everything is his fault and rightly so, he takes the heat, and hardly any of us cool him down, sure there are some churches and some establishments to maintain god but that is now the minority the world needs more than one, a set, a group, a platoon, then each one can take the damage and they can heal one another in this land of the forms. For we are all still in the cave, we were born here, in the Dark Ages, we are meant to stay here. Do not be distracted from the cave due to us being inundated by the technology that only a handful can tell you about base to ceiling, no one can build a phone from the ground up, we need a team of specialist to make one phone, back before the dark ages, we spoke in paragraphs, look at homers works, and we also knew the top all the way down to the bottom, we have gained so little, yet lost all most everything and now this is the new normal

White Hole

Things end and things start in a white hole, I very much doubt there being more than one in this greater Cosmos, and I think that that white hole event has already been and gone, as things are around and that stuff occurs. Without this event nothing and I mean nothing would be possible or even here, some people may be able to view this world as a petridish of a super massive giant, I doubt that as we have the base elements and super sub particles which are basically the fabric of the Cosmos. So we are definitely on the ground floor, how far may humans be able to permeate the galaxy and how many stars may we call sun.

Like Nietzsche said God is dead and we have killed him, or God died for us to live or perhaps in a white hole all of space time is viewable and he can self permeate from the limitless power he is able to control, if I was a supreme omnipotent being that is basically infinite in this white hole why would I leave into a place that has the laws of entropy and heat death eventuality.

The cosmic background radiation is very flat, the difference between a high state and a low state is a few degrees +/- so this if viewed from a exterior position could be like the game of life how the gird in the games case can be populated with 1 or 0 then they follow a small set of rules in which self replicating patterns can form, the stars are something if not self replicating, one stars effects can kick start stars and even give resources to the other star for their process but then the Game of life cannot be built on so that further more complex structures can be built as the game is only 2D, and we are so far 3D the structure of the universe at the beginning could be less and then aspects of emergence happened where thing begin to become more and more complex

Get Off Each Others Backs and Help

We are on an island by means that we are surrounded by a secondary substance, space or void. Instead of bolstering one another, we seem keen on holding each other down just to be that much closer to wealth or power, not knowing how long we have here. We could be sucked up by a rogue black hole or have a gamma ray burst that may rip off the atmosphere. On this rock we call earth, we just need to shape up and move together into the stars, point one being the end of MAD warfare, as this is one thing that has begun and cannot be defused, the US and China have agreements, most of these agreements don't help anyone and if they were to be renegotiated then the arguments would be that of " no this is worse for us and better for you " then they start to posture with the nuclear arsenal that they both possess. We are in a downward spiral, governments want control not just of the laws but the people and are actively making us more docile to make their jobs easier, if you want easy work someplace else, this is the centre of the political system, no one wants you there we just want you to be fair and not steal all our money. When we start to move out into the stars, which need to happen soon, we need strong men and wise women, who will be able, like stat trek, to handle heavy and hard situations, space is no walk in the park.

Our system in the west atleast has begun to be be a two sided stick, red on one end, blue on the other, this is nothing like the Romans as red, and the Greeks as blue as it is in the classics the whole system is leering towards one end goal, both sides, we just pick the captain of the ship and have no say in it's direction or course, this is not balanced nor is it fair, it's basically transparent at this point, no one repeals laws that the other has done, as if they were two warring parties this would occur as they are on different ends of the machine which we call a country, parties do not work for us, they merely allow us to not revolt against the bourgeoisie who tell us how and when to die

In a truly revolutionary approach would be that both top parties, in a system with more than 5 parties would co-lead and each law or bill would be on the debate stage where the house of commons would be melting pot where the best ideas lead out of and are rising from, as both leaders would need to substantiate their points with actual arguments and evidence, not just we have a majority so we can pass the most bills/laws. And perhaps some system of concerned civilians can raise a debate where the MPs would be able to diffuse the idea or plan action from the person.

The law should be centrestage and the MP meer catalists for perfection of this law, all of them taking into account the letter, emails, and tweets they receive from their county/populus/a. Then and only then could the laws be held accountable, along with whomever raised this law as a necessary action to the betterment of the country to add strength, to maintain a strong front in which the people, populus/a is then bolstered.

Oppression for any reason is wrong. We must be able to forgive and actually help out the others left on this spaceship that has been on autopilot since time dawned on us. Placing blame and not being able to correct the fault is a fault in it of itself.

There is an unspoken harmony between flora and fauna, between trees and man, they stand and shall if left alone outgrow and outlive us all, they produce O2 from CO2, they have evolved from the same single celled organism that we have branched from this heroic set of circumstances allowed for this world to be balanced out, with localised pockets of CO2 emission and then O2 recycling of this, which allows us to live in harmony with all that is good.

Aurora borealis

When man first saw the northern lights he declared that this was a sign from god Himself, and now in this modern age we are able to deduce with science that the aurora borealis is solar activity bouncing off of the earth magnetic core’s outer field, and that the radiation from the sun is cascading off of the magnetic influence of the earth. We are able to produce a wrong answer so how much understanding has been withheld and postulated that the effect is somehow divine.

The collected informational wealth of the world has been collected once with the Library of Alexandria which met its untimely demise, the second Library of knowledge would become the Vatican archives, which is no easy feat to enter. One must possess the book that the are searching for and have a letter from the pope, how many people are able to see the library is hypothetical as no one stores any public access record, but this Library is the second collection which is Old, I'm talking ancient. The world works on the formations of understanding which move it, the vatican has works in its possession which predate a few centuries. These works in my mind should be scanned and added online so that the original documents can be preserved

We are all Stars.

Every human, every sentient thing is linked in a fundamental way to the centre of that star the world is full of bright and unqunched people, to the public education system they force us through, we all grow and change, do you think the government should control how we grow and change, would those who rule us want us to be smart enough to rise up and support a better system. The whole system is rigged from the start the system produces sheep and cattle, for they want to rule us, not rule for us, they want us weak, throughout each week we become weaker. Our stars are dying, we hardly understand the formation and movement of our own stars, this galaxy is the hardest to view from the inside, gravitational wave detectors spread out across this galaxy would burst open the gates for how we see stars, and how they are formed, starforges, nebulae, are the seats of the power, true power, harnessing the suns potential is how we accende to be a type 3 kardashev, a dyson sphere, we must climb for we have to lay claim to all that is uninhabited we must, spread across the stars, we have reached the ceiling we have reached all four corners of the globe, we now must look outwardly into the space that will cause so much change to humans. If we cannot look past a pigmentation issue of skin, how will we react to humans grown up on planets that have different gravity ?

Where be them aliens ?

Where are they, they must be out there, or perhaps this set of universal laws of physics isn't ripe for galactic colonisation. I'm not saying that these aliens are lazy they should be doing stuff to collect resources or perhaps to be looking for another life, we have not been advanced for very long, 100 years ago things were very different.

Have aliens seeded this planet with one simple biomachine, probably a plant and then left us to our devices of evolution, as they might have checked on us to only then send an asteroid to whip out the dinosaurs as they did not evolve intelligence past that of a house cat, they might have place polaris at our north as to make the sailors nights easier as without this and a wandering magnetic north pole then the humans might have stalled when we needed to be joining the continents in global trade routes, silk road was one of these events but not of the aquatic type.

We have the largest moon known, this moon might have been artificially created as some set of events allowed for the origin of the Moon is usually explained by a Mars-sized body striking the Earth, making a debris ring that eventually collected into a single natural satellite, the Moon, but there are a number of variations on this giant-impact hypothesis, as well as alternative explanations, and research continues into how the Moon came to be.

We could very well being monitored from a position perhaps polaris, or another system, we could be the product of another race, which instead of landing and taking all the resources for them self they could have nudged our ancestors forward, giving us more than basic pattern recognition, allowing for the human race to one day ascend into the heavens and allow for us to join alongside a galactic consortium, which will be a generalised body of races which set forth laws of the galaxy.

We have not had the most pleasant ride on this spaceship, several times we have been close to total annihilation, some time back in the ice age we were

10,000 people, and other times we have not been too smart, setting off nukes in downwind testing sites meaning that the fallout would be scattered all across the upper US states, also Japan with two nukes Hiroshima and Nagasaki, these both were sites of massive amount of nuclear material, these events have changed the people via their views and have also changed the physical cells

Each galaxy has one prime race, this is the oldest, not the same age of the galaxy but all life must have a clam state to begin, the galaxy has to cool down and cease violent radiation emissions, we (the human) are this prime race, each and every galaxy has one prime race, we are not better nor are we equal, we have chosen to posion this earth, not all of us but those who control the top of the power pyramid, we barely deserve this position, we still have time to fix and shapen up, we have a ticking clock, we must be ready to leave by the time the sun is going to go supernova this is our hurdle, this is when we must be ready by, only 8000 years, some predictions show that we have been here for 12,000 yet we have only been to the moon once, and then pulled that back to just doing the ISS and filling the sky with satellites, the reason we stoped, we crowd a winner and forgot to keep going, now with SpaceX, Rocketlabs, and several other, there is once again competition, that’s all we the humans need to keep going, someone saying they can do it better, then both sides keep going. We must be ready to take all of us with us, or the largest tradgy will happen, all the souls left on earth will be consumed by the supernova, 8000 years, get that on your calendar and get ready, Humans ! we are the prime race for this galaxy so let us go and colonise the stars, if we do find any others I assume we can have a trade agreement and build a beneficial

The fermi paradox

As stated the world is young, the greater cosmos is old, it might have been that the greater cosmos was to violently soaked in radiation that no life has occurred, it might be that the aliens have begun life on a planets without sufficient resources to reach outer space, it could be that the aliens have gone to space and then prospered but ultimately faded away, we won’t be able to see their spaceships with our telescopes, we might have to take a field trip to these system to find relics and ancient structures on par with the great pyramids, there could be hold quadrants of the galaxy or other galaxies that are now essentially graveyards for whole civilizations, with technology and art, but due to our time span have missed all the messaged which they themselves sent out as we are now.

You are Atlas

Who was holding up this world before atlas, I say each and every one of us is a son of god and that we all bare the responsibility to hold up this world, each and every one of us is needs to understand the world, this is how we hold it up, not literally but figuratively that we make sense of it and sow meaning. If left in the jungle without upbringing we would be far away from all the advances which we share between one another, we must be holders of the formation which gives sense and meaning to the world, some uncontacted tribes are finding our trash and seeing it as a sign from the gods whom have blessed them, as they are making meaning for themselves as we have been doing here in the post industrial revolution age which we are still further more advancing for the general populous. With science, a word from sico which means I know in latin, we are checking that the meaning we put there has 10,000 positive results. If you do not understand something it is not easy to account for, if you know what it is then you may be able to do something with it, understanding can be as little or as much information that can be learnt, do not stop if you’re satisfied keep learning if it eludes you, it is in our moral imperative to scour and know what is able to be known. Socrates died in his pursuit of knowledge, you may simply lie back and be happy in your blissful ignorance, but is not up to the standard of a soon to be galactic stretching civilisation.

This whole world, and every part of it is encrypted in the halls of the white hole, we must begin to unravel the mystery which is an enigma. We have the tools for instant global communication why are we beginning to infight and shame others, we should be helping all, not so that they may be effortless, but so that they do not have to walk your path the whole length to re-discover the understanding which allows you to be effortless in your action.

Almost all fiction can be brought into the land of D&D what I mean by this is that all the characters can be listed down with a character sheet, the rules of the fictional universe can be listed, and all actions can be classified with rolling dice, dice which are the basic platonic solids, there is chance in everything, except the origins of the universe, " God does not play with dice " as we see our laws aren't random as they have allowed for us to be where we are, doing what we do, taking this lens in to the realms of all works of drama.

Inside the SuperMassive Singularity, is a 8 axised time fractal, that shows all of external space inside this one galaxy, the alternative mini singularities, which all have the exact same " Mass " are those of the other galaxies cores, the physical size difference is that which the data has to travel, the worlds of the galaxy, the suns, the everything is inside our galaxy, each galaxy has this setup, super massive in the centre and mini around this central, there is an upper limit to how far the data can travel before it’s pointless, as these are not singuaries, sure they are a single point of different densities, for if they were all the same density then they would have the same size as one another with no alternative in size or shape, yet we have small unlimited dense points (singularities) and then the same thing yet smaller ? they are not “ black “, and they are most certainly not “ holes “, if that is a “” hole ”” then so is my vacuum, when I turn it on

The world

Everything that is anything is a excitation of a field, James Maxwell saw the world as this subgrid of these field (vector point space) but now we have discrete packets of datum moving over this grid (if that doesn't prove simulation theory idk what does) and he was right, if these field vibrate enough the occupied space is then heavier, starting with low density gas and moving up to the metals, slowly and directly, we are not at the privilege to move mass into higher energy states but we may be able to know them as they really are, this point has an axis and depending on the state of vibration on the point will give it mass and from the states of matter we can discern what it is, if it is a low volume gas or a dense heavy lead like element, light is a pulse of high energy no mass, if enough point energy can be held it can begin to be an element or hard light.

When man found fire he stared into it until he went blind or found out how to cook, we might have a need to stare into static until we see what we might pull from it's depths

Alchemistry became science,mainly Biology physics, and chemistry, herbology became medicine all knowledge fronts must be work upon before we will have new breakthroughs that add to the ever increasing circle of understanding

We are still only merely second generation fish, as we have crawled out of the sea but not from the land towards the void of space, I doubt we can evolve to be vacuum sucking humans who can live in space, but we can build, man can reach 200 mph in a car and we can touch the floor of the oceans with submarines so we might be able to build colony ships which will lead us into space, right now we have all our eggs in the basket of earth, this is not ideal as we must be able to forge new homes across the stars, any day now all live might evaporate, either due to nuclear warfare, solar flare, deep space gamma ray bursts, a new virus any form of calamity is now a global one, as we travel and exchange so much with other countries, during the mediaeval times a plague could be naturally contained as people lack of travel speed and general numbers of population and it's form of clustering. The fact that we have survived for so long has to be a baffling conundrum how much time do we have is anyone's guess, but we must band together to reach for the next place we will be able to thrive, space is not a nice place for us humans, but we must and have too be able to spread across this solar system, then perhaps across the galaxy,

We have problems to fix here on earth, but we all must be able to see solutions these might be aided with the mining of the asteroid belt, as there is a risk of collision so the more mined resources that we can bring back to earth the freer from risk we will be in from the impact of one of these objects, we do not need to focus on one area, one team might need to focus but as a global civilization we should be working on all problems equally, or at least up to the upmost of our needs, we can be better, we can bring solutions from afar, we must be able to survive but this is not by staying in our primordial home and not expanding across the stars.

We could fix overpopulation with the use of colonie ships we could send out and have other planets in our human dominion.

Chim

Inside this world we are able to be in dream states and then waking states how is one able to emulate the world in side ourselves, is there a higher Being which is holding our world in his dream state which then dictate the laws of the universe and that we might be able not only to lucid dream but also come into contact with the higher entity which may allow us to be able to enter altered states of consciousness and are we like in lucid dreaming allowed to connect to worlds of design of other higher consciousness. In this world they may be one whom is the product of a higher design to be allowed to be awake and yet asleep who is able to see the world through the lens of higher form and see aspects of this world which would go otherwise unseen or unheard which might be aiding or hindering us to do things which would benefit the whole.

In each one of us according to the catholic faith would be the divine shard, this in their view needs to do a full loop and be given back to god, so in each of us it has the shard and we may need to keep this clean and in good condition for the guy up stairs. This sounds like a quest, and what alchemical states may be induced if the shard is to be used properly. How does one activate this metaphysical object ? with Will and choice one must reach into the self and move this magical item to find it’s applications. Does everyone share the same shard or is each one of us equipped with a unique one ?

One may be able to reach Cib if they were to focus on the reality and then come into focus the idea of the dreamstate of the godhead which rules all reality, then one would be able to claim self as a whole and not as a systematic part of the world then they would be closer to Cib as one can see the world for what it is and also have the idea of self stabilisation inside this world of fabric one has to be a clothes pin.

If the buddhist and hindu thought is to be followed then the self is in a perpetual cycle of reincarnation which must be escaped by reaching nirvana or from removing desire and attachments.

If god was around and then he started to hand out divine shards, then would the whitehole have to be placing these shards into the future forever or would it be a position which is outside of time and just drops them into place ? or is this shard the aspect of the last of god and we all must unite our pieces at the end to reform the god machine.

And what about lucifer and his revolution in the heavens were he brought down half of heaven as they all wanted free will, odd how they came to the conclusion of wanting free will before they had it, but these angels would be able to be like man on earth, are these the same value of human souls/divine shards, or do the angels hold higher powers, of course no one would remember being in heaven just as one doesn't remember their past lifes.

Dream states

Dreams happen, but most of the time the dreaming is not fully remembered what circumstances would one not need the memory of the dream, how has so much of our dream states not recalled once awakening, unless these dreams are merely fed into the subconscious which then allow for other developments, Dreaming for me is hard but I am able once in a while to catch a dream and also have the memories available.

Dreams can start states of providence which one cannot stop thinking about the dream message or acts in the dreams where one can become a new man from the experience, most heavenly visions can be explained through dreams but not many religions place much on the visions of the night, where we are and what our goals are can be seen in the visions. People use the phrase let me sleep on it, as if we have further cognitive abilities in sleep and that these help us in the decision making

Dreamscapes

Dreams are woven or seemed, as a fabric is crafted from a bunch of threads, the threads could be memories of the one the dream is crafted for, the world is just experience to us, the days stream, from the visions we see, from the sensations which could be faked, do not trust anything not the feelings or the things in the feelings, (EA challenge everything) the whole aspect of life is filtered through your perspective, the totality of life is of that which we can all perceive, the one who can figure out is that who can perceive of everything, we all can control the construct that is a dreamscape, it takes some practice, and you need to be able to summon away from vision, just reach for what you want, and your hand may grab it, away from sight.

The Precursors

Maybe there is a super advanced race who move through galaxy to galaxy changing their very fundamentals to move from one instance to another, the constants of life are that which are set by the spin and decay of the SuperMassive Singularity at the very core of all galaxies, this also sets the fundamentals of all physics, they could have seeded this galaxy, here almost half way into the edge of the galaxy, they could have given us the plants, which are just super advanced machine, running code called DNA and using technology like nanotubes to move water more than 10 Metres, these immortal titans we call trees, they could have moved polaris to our north star, if I was a astronomer then I would be checking for a possible route that polaris was moved to our north star, looking for gravitational phenomena to tell the tale of those who came before.

Life Starts

Life begins at the self replication point, for us the humans this is when the Sperm meets the Egg, your mother did not create you, your father did not create you, you made yourself, then and only after that, did your mother have a attachable point where you can start to grow faster with the umbilical cord, this is your life line as well as a point where you can be damaged, if you had a good mother all she would have ate and consumed would have been good things like grown veg and fruit, if a bad mother you had this would have been drugs and alcohol, if they could not withstand 9 months to not poison you for the rest of your life she clearly wasn't that good to begin with.

All Life begets all other life, I do concur that pompeii was a progeneration event, for is lava swept the floor they would have become a trail of dust, these people did not die from a volcano, sure it might have errupted, but they (the statues) could not have survived if lava sweept the floor as statues, I assert that the people collectively pooled their life essence into a new galaxy, this i postulate would be Andromeda (And Rome Da, as in and rome has given (as they were roman, and Da means to give (imperative))) they all pooled their life force into a point where they made a new galaxy, with 144 billion galaxies that have been mapped (thus far) we, I would assume are in the prime galaxy or in the set of prime galaxies as life has either started here or was seeded, when a ancient civilisation reaches a certain point they all pack up and leave, pompeii left us a message, one that will stand there for us to all gawk and stare at, never truly knowing, the babylonians, the maya, the ancient egyptians, have all left with almost no trace, they in my view made a galaxy either city wide ones or person by person, the clues are here, come on scoob stop stuffing your face and add 1 and 1 together. We all have the light of a star inside our mind, the mind is unlimited power, we all have the capalites, if the system has confused you and chewed you out I am sorry, you may never reach your own private heaven the heaven we seek is a galaxy all onto our own. We all are smart enough, just we are filled with jargon.